

Remembering Your Joy /

by Deborah Bell

When someone asks me if I like my job, my response is, “My job brings me joy!” and “I do something different consistently.” And this is why....

It is the joy of being able to dream and make it a reality. It is the joy of helping someone who is waiting for a miracle and the thought of being a part of the miracle for others. It is the Joy of giving back, and helping others mentally, physically, and spiritually through our programs. It is the joy of changing lives daily, meeting new people, making and building new relationships. It is the joy of witnessing to others and seeing positive transitions all around people. There are many surprises and challenges we can't anticipate, but it is the joy of having the faith to see the miracle, trusting and believing it will all come around is where... I COUNT IT ALL JOY!
